

The James P. Holland Memorial Lecture Series presents:

From Silent Spring to Silent Night...

The Impact of Modern Day Pesticides on Amphibians

Monday Afternoon
October 7, 2002
4:00 PM, Myers Hall 130

Reception follows in the Jordan Hall Atrium

A seminar by
Dr. Tyrone B. Hayes
Associate Professor of Integrative Biology
University of California at Berkeley

The James P. Holland Memorial Lecture Series is sponsored by the Office of Student Development & Diversity, the Office of Multicultural Affairs, and the Department of Biology. Dr. Hayes' talk is made possible thanks to funding from these units, as well as support from the Department of Biology's NIH Training Grant, the College of Arts & Sciences, the Department of Afro-American Studies, the Medical Sciences Program, the Neural Sciences Program, the Office of the Dean of Faculties, and Research & the University Graduate School.